Dedication

With deep appreciation for his loyal and understanding service to the students of the Charles H. McCann Vocational-Technical High School
the Class of 1968

respectfully dedicates this book to

who, although his tasks are difficult, dispatches them with dignity and genuine concern for each student. The lessons of responsibility and self-discipline that he has instilled in us will long linger in our minds as the basic foundation on which to build a mature character.

Message From The Superintendent

Mr. James R. Westall

Many persons outside the field of vocational education conceive our function as a process by which we confer manual dexterity plain and simple. This criticism may have held true in the past, but, as graduates having spent two to four years at McCann, you realize such criticism is obsolete now. The difference between vocational education and vocational training is not one of semantics but of course content and point of view. The student or worker is not simply a pair of hands; he is a person with a claim to individual dignity, regardless of whether he makes a living over a lathe or in a library.

The newer vocational education programs reflect this. They recognize that a man's education must prepare him for every aspect of life, not just for the time he spends on the job. These programs help you, the vocational student, understand the relationship between your work and the total world in which you live. Consider how the vocational education program here has been broadened to develop every student not simply as an employee, but as citizen, as father or mother, and as a distinctive human person with a life to live as well as a living to earn.

To each and every graduate I extend congratulations for your accomplishment, and sincerest wishes for a fruitful future.

Automotive

Nestled in the southwest corner of the school is one of the busiest departments in the school. In the Automotive Department students study and repair many makes of automobiles. Ranging from wheel alignment or ignition work to complete engine or transmission overhaul, students work under the direction and instruction of Mr. White and Mr. Winn.

Mr. Baker is the related teacher in the Automotive Department, and daily he gives the students the theory relating to the practical aspects of their work.

Qualified Seniors in this department are employed in the Co-operative program, working at different garages in the school district full time at regular wages during their shop week. In the spring seniors that can best represent the shop enter the Plymouth Troubleshooting Contest.

Beauty Culture

The Beauty Culture course enables students to learn the skills, techniques, and trade necessary to become gainfully employed in the field of Cosmetology. This course develops the student into a well-informed, conscientious, safety-minded beautician. The students learn cleanliness, accuracy, and precision in all work, the care and use of all tools and equipment used, and develop within themselves the appreciation of natural beauty, creativeness and the standards of cosmetology.

While in the shop, students have a chance, among other duties, to change the color of their hair, and to try different hair styles. Other practical aspects of Cosmetology are applied in the shop.

The State Board requires that a student be sixteen years of age and pass all subjects in the tenth grade in order to transfer to this course.

Electricity

The Electrical course offers a student the knowledge necessary to become a safe and skilled apprentice. He gains creditable working hours toward a Journeyman's license. Theory, science, National Electric Code, and blueprint reading are taught by Mr. Dickinson. This, in combination with the laboratory work with Mr. Hartlage and Mr. Hamlin, is devoted to the training of students. A typical day may find our boys installing a practice job in motor control, working with generators, or even doing maintenance work on the school electrical system.

Seniors may be eligible to work as apprentice electricians with the General Electric Company in Pittsfield through the Co-operative program.

Electronics

The Electronics program provides the student with an understanding of electronic theories and principles and their use. Mr. Perry teaches related subjects in the classroom which covers basic electronics, computational mathematics, electronic drafting and safety.

The laboratory is under the guidance of Mr. Szewczyk. Here the student applies the theories to practical applications in electronic experiments dealing with AC and DC principles, vacuum tube and transistor operation and the various types of electronic equipment.

Several students have gained valuable experience through the co-operative program at Sprague Electric Company in North Adams.

Food Service

This course prepares its students for a career in any of the several phases of food preparation and handling.

The major areas of concentration include menu planning, food management, storage, food chemistry, quantity preparation and baking, hygiene and sanitation, safety and terminology.

Mrs. Hatton's related classroom instruction is applied in the kitchen and bakery under the direction of Mr. Cantone. Students are also exposed to cafeteria work under the guidance of Mrs. Ostrander, the school dietitian.

The Tea Room is open to the public every Tuesday and Friday. On these days the students prepare and serve the entire meal. During the school year the students serve over fifteen hundred patrons.

Machine Technology

Machine Technology is the precision shop of the school. Under the direction of Mr. Roberts and Mr. O'Connor the students learn to operate with control and precision the machines used in the shop, as well as putting into use the theories of machine work taught by Mr. Filkins in the classroom.

The course not only teaches the fundamentals of basic machines, such as lathes, milling machines and grinders, but also gives instruction in tool making, diemaking, inspecting parts, and assembling of machine tools.

Several students in the co-operative program have worked in area machine shops during the school year.

Metal Fabrication

Our modern space age demands that our working force supply an unlimited number of skilled craftsmen with the ability to shape metal. The Metal Fabrication department is vitally involved in the preparation of such craftsmen.

The related aspects of this program are taught by Mr. Brazeau. Included is metallurgy, applied mathematics and blueprint reading.

The practical application of this theory is handled by Mr. Walden. In the shop students perform such jobs as gas, heliarc and metallic welding. They also work on layout and fabrication of sheet metal. Finished products, perhaps motivated by their athletic interest, range from metal backboards for the basketball court to an eight-man sled for the football field.

Plant Maintenance

The purpose of Plant Maintenance is to prepare young men to work in the maintenance department of commercial and industrial establishments. The shop work is under the direction of Mr. Babula and Mr. Rosse. The related classroom is handled by Mr. Choquette.

The curriculum includes training in woodworking, painting, electricity, machine shop, plumbing, heating and metal working.

During the four years the students are guided in three forms of Plant Maintenance: general maintenance, following specific instructions; specific trade basics, painting, plumbing and heating repair service; "thinking maintenance," diagnosing mechanical and technical problems and prescribing corrective measures.

Tool & Machine Design

Under the leadership of Mr. Keyes, the program in Tool & Machine Design, more affectionately called Drafting, consists of the fundamentals of drafting, reproduction, production detail drawing, machinery power transmissions, elements of tooling and elements of designing.

The applied subjects are algebra, geometry and trigonometry.

Drafting room practice and procedures, shop theory and their applications are the basic sciences of the course.

All Subject matter meets the requirements set up by the school director, the State Department of Vocational Education, and the American Institute for Design and Drafting.

Medical

The Medical Department consists of four divisions.

The fifteen-month Practical Nursing course requires its graduates to take the State Board Examination before becoming Licensed Practical Nurses.

The Surgical Assistant course of ten months' duration enables its graduates to work not only in surgery, but also as assistants to surgeons.

After completing the ten-month Medical Assistant course, graduates are qualified to work in hospitals, and also in doctors' offices as Medical Secretaries and to assist in examinations.

The ten-month Dental Assistant course qualifies graduates to assist dentists and to do secretarial work.

Co-Operative Program

One of the features of training at McCann is the Co-operative Program whereby selected seniors are given the opportunity to work in local industries while continuing their education. On alternate weeks these seniors work full time on the job, returning to classes for the other weeks. Participating industries are the General Electric Co. in Pittsfield, the Adams Bakery Association in Adams, the Jones Division of the Beloit Corp. in Dalton, and Sprague Electric Co., Hunter Machine Co., Greylock Tool & Machine Design Co., Parker Machine Co., K-M Motor Sales, and Scarafoni Ford in North Adams.

Valedictory

Today marks the end of our high school career, but it is really only the beginning, the commencing of a new life, full of responsibilities for which school has prepared us. We will now be called upon to shoulder new burdens, to make great sacrifices, to assume the responsibilities of adulthood, but our education of the past four years has contributed in large measure to our ability to do this. We are now able to take our places in this great democratic society and do what we can to make sure that it will continue--that it will never perish from the earth.

Graduating from a vocational-technical school gives us an advantage over other students, for as technical students we have not only enriched our minds but we have also learned to use our hands to benefit society. Soon we will find out that the world does not owe us a living, that competition is keen, that there is no place in our society for those who cannot contribute something useful to it. Our technical know-how is needed. To those who can provide it, jobs will be forthcoming. We have been given every opportunity to improve ourselves--industry will be our testing ground. A technical school like ours fills the widening gap between high school and college and gives us the means to benefit society and ourselves. College is still open to us because our curriculum prepares us for it while teaching us a trade.

In the very near future, we, the members of the class of 1968 will go forth--some to work--some to further our education--some to serve our country. As we do this it is necessary that we consider not only our own future but that of the country of which it is a part. All is not well . . . the problems that face our country are evident to all of us. Division in our nation is a wound that must be healed. All factions must work together to tear down the barriers of hatred and bigotry that exist throughout our nation. Our constitution guarantees us certain inalienable rights, but it is clearly evident that these rights are being denied to many in America today. If this shroud does not lift from our nation, our very existence will be in jeopardy. It is true that our problems are complex. That is why we must all work together if these matters are to be resolved. We, as a free and democratic people must set an example for the rest of the world. And we must do our part, however small it may seem.

In closing it seems fitting to take a moment to thank our teachers and other faculty members for the knowledge and guidance they have given us, the patience they have shown in helping us to find the answers which we have sought. We have reached a milestone today, graduation, but we realize that it is not the end--that we must continue to learn--to use that which we have learned here in the past four years. The way has not always been easy, but the reward is great. A diploma is the key to a door; when it is opened a new life stretches out before us. Opportunities are rare so we must take advantage of them.

Let us, again, thank our school, the faculty and the directors by saying with one mind and one heart--Hail To Thee McCann!
